

Evolucion Pty Ltd - Privacy Policy

We appreciate your interest in our company, our products and services. We take your privacy and personal information as a matter of high importance.

Evolucion Pty Ltd only collects software internal information (error data) that does not include Customer personal data. You can cancel the submission of error data if you don't wish to submit that information, however it may be required to solve support issues.

We will inform you as to the nature, scope and purpose of any collection and use of information and data provided to Evolucion Pty Ltd with the purpose of technical support.

The following paragraphs describe in detail different aspects of our Privacy Policy.

External Links

Our website may reference to third parties. As a rule, these are identified by stating the relevant Internet address or the company/product logo. Evolucion Pty Ltd has no influence whatsoever on the contents and design of sites of other providers and therefore cannot extend the warranties under this declaration on data protection to such sites. Nor does the fact that we refer to such sites mean that we adopt their contents as our own.

Cookies

Our websites use so-called session cookies. These cookies deposit data for purposes of technical processing in your browser's memory. However, they do not contain any personal data and are deleted after your browser is closed.

We may store cookies on your computer, which are not deleted after conclusion of the session. These make it possible to recognize your computer when the Website is next visited. Such cookies make it possible for us to improve your browsing experience in Our Website. Moreover, it is possible for you to adjust your browser settings to reject Cookies all together.

Website browsing related Data

Visitors can browse Evolucion Pty Ltd website product information pages without us requiring users to register or sign in. Only for statistical and internal system-related purposes do we record the access time, the quantity of data transferred, the pages that you visited, the page from which you accessed our website and the browser used; in addition to your IP address. That information is not personalized and kept only for security purposes.

Collection of Personal Data

We do not collect Personal Data of any kind. We will only acquire information as stated in the paragraph "Website browsing related Data". Registration Data is only kept for commercial and legal reasons and to provide Support and Sales services to you and will not be shared or sold to third parties.

E-mail Contact

Customer Registration Data includes your e-mail address. We will communicate with you by e-mail only for Support and Sales purposes. Should you require us to remove your information from our Registration Database please contact us through our website Feedback page.

E-Mails and Commercial information

Due to Taxation Office requirements we will keep Commercial information and email messages for a minimum of 10 years; these are intended to be used only for business and legal purposes and will not otherwise be shared with third parties.

Complaints

Customer may lodge a complaint at any time using the Feedback page in our Website. We will contact in due time those customers that have provided a contact email address.